

Ron Salvador

Ron Salvador has been part of the Rich Dad network for over 11 years now, having first read the book Rich Dad Poor Dad in 2000. He has been trained by Robert Kiyosaki, and is one of the graduates of Robert's year long Instructor's Certification Program. He has also been trained by several Rich Dad Advisors, including Blair Singer, Jayne Johnson, and Kelly Ritchie. He is global trainer of the CASHFLOW Game, having done events from Hawaii to New York, England, Russia, Sweden, Germany, Poland, and Israel.

Ron was born in the Philippines, but came to the US when he was 2 years old. He grew up traveling because his father was a US Marine, so Ron has lived in many parts of the US, as well as going to high school in Japan. Most of his life has been spent in Hawaii, but he now lives in Arizona.

During college, Ron worked in the restaurant industry, then eventually moved to the newspaper industry, working as a manager for Gannett (USA Today) and the largest newspaper company in the state of Hawaii. Through the principles he learned from Rich Dad, he invested in real estate and eventually left the job sector to pursue a career as a speaker and trainer of Rich Dad philosophy.

Over the past 5 years, Ron has developed a system of facilitating and teaching the CASHFLOW Game that maximizes the learning experience. He now travels across the globe to teach this system and has helped thousands realize the powerful lessons that can be pulled from the game.